The Kosmos 'Oris is a special unit that is useful when you need to deliver a speech, message or lecture. Dirk Wynants has created the 'Oris in response to a request from the Design Museum in Ghent. In the 'Oris, the speaker stands at a higher level and has a good view over the audience. There is a step provided that can be flipped over, so that even small people can be seen properly. The parasol reflects the light of the lamp, so that speakers can read their notes, and their appearance and body language are emphasized.
