

frilly patricia urquiola

The new Frilly is a transparent polycarbonate chair. The undulating effect that runs throughout the entire structure gives the chair a soft light appearance, like pleated fabric, creating a sensual optical effect that evokes natural forms: a crystal-clear waterfall, a petrified lava flow, the iridescent wings of a butterfly or the effect of the wind on a grassy meadow. The range of colors in which it is available reinforces parallels with the natural elements and gives it a further graceful touch.
