Exactly ten years after its debut at the Salone del Mobile di Milano in 2006, the collection of Oops tables expands. The designer Monica Graffeo has created round and rectangular fixed tables with large tops to accompany the original extendable versions. Essential, versatile and ideal for the broadest range of spaces, from the home to contract furniture projects, these tables have the same distinctive pressure die-cast aluminium legs; four legs for the rectangular top version, and three or four for the round top version.

The simplicity and minimalism of the Oops extendable round table are what give it its dynamic visual impact. A perfect round table which can be turned into a larger, oval table while losing nothing of its original flair. The extension is facilitated by parting the table to reveal a central tray containing the extension, which then fits seamlessly into place to create a perfect oval. Beautifully manufactured by true artisans and craftsmen, the cast aluminium legs on this extendable round table are slightly curved to balance the overall design. The legs are firmly anchored to the middle of the table base so that they flare out from underneath for a pleasing effect that doesn't detract from the dramatic effect of the round top.
